Our History

Established in 1996, Eagle Eye Produce came from humble beginnings in Roberts, Idaho, a little farming community in Eastern Idaho where Newman set up his first office in the laundry room of his home.

In early 2002, Eagle Eye Produce began investing in the soil and purchased a Warehouse in Idaho Falls, Idaho. Taking control of their own supply and designing a potato packing plant in line with Newman's Vision that would become one of the most technologically advanced potato warehouses in the United States.

As the company continued to grow at an accelerated rate, Newman and his partners paralleled this strategy by building, producing, and growing year-round onion, melon, and value-add potato programs as well as establishing Nogales vegetable programs to further increase what Eagle Eye Produce would be able to offer their customers. Eagle Eye Produce now grows and ships in several different states, multiple countries, and are a multinational company remembering that none of this would be possible without an amazing team of partners and employees.

Eagle Eye Logistics

Our History:

In the late 1990's, Eagle Eye Produce was expanding faster than carriers could keep up. Newman Giles was looking to create his own logistics company and was purchasing trucks to deliver fresh produce to his customers as quickly and efficiently as possible.

After being introduced at the Eagle Eye Produce Warehouse by a shared friend, Newman Giles and Justin Clement began building the framework for what would later become Eagle Eye Logistics. At the time, Justin Clement owned and operated his own trucking company. This new partnership helped Newman realize his dream of shipping fresh and quality produce nationwide. Since their friendship and partnership began, they have grown the company immensely.
